Secret for a Farmer's Wife....While the milking of your cows is going on, let your pans be placed in a kettle of boiling water. Strain the milk into one of the pans taken hot from the kettle; and cover the same with another of these hot pans, and proceed in a like manner with the whole mess of milk, and you will find that you will have double the quantity of good rich cream, and that you will get double the quantity of sweet, delicious butter.

The Drunkard's Will....I leave to society a ruined character, a wretched example, and a memory that will soon rot.

I leave to my parents during the rest of their lives as much sorrow as humanity, in a decrepid and feeble state, can sustain.

I leave to my brothers and sisters as much mortification and injury as I could conveniently bring upon them.

I leave to my wife a broken heart, a life of wretchedness, a shame to weep over me, and premature death.

I give and bequeath to each of my children, poverty, ignorance, a low character, and the remembrance that their father was a monster.

A TABLE OF THE EQUATION OF TIME,

Showing how much a clock or watch should be faster or slower than the Sun, for the year 1847.

Death, In. Christ'n Bible.
Immortality.
Fame.
Wealth. Friend'p
MAN.
Mercy.
Praise.
Ambition.
Praise.

Be thou my guide on error's sea!
My compass, chart, directing me!
When toss'd on doubt's tumultuous tide,
Thy promises, my anchor bid
That rugged mountain barren seems,
Yet's fill'd with precious ore:
So though the Christian worthless seems,
His soul is valu'd more!
Ere sin could blight, or sorrow fade,—
Death came with friendly care,
The op'ning buds to heaven convey'd,
And bade them blossom there.
Grave, the guardian of our dust!
Grave, the trea'ry of the skies!
Ev'ry atom of our dust
Rests in hope again to rise.
Hark! the judgment trumpet calls.—
Soul! rebuild thine house of clay!
Immortality thy walls,
And eternity thy day!
What's fame? A fancy'd life in other's breath,
A thing beyond us, ev'n before our death:
All that we feel of it, begins and ends
In the small circle of our foes and friends.
Friendship, like an evergreen,
Will brave th' inclement blast,
And still retains the bloom of spring,
When summer days are past.
But when to virtuous hands 'tis given
It blesses like the dews of heaven:
Like heav'n, it hears the orphan's cries;
And wipes the tears from widow's eyes.
The tender infant springs to light:
Youth blossoms with the breeze:
Age, with'ring age, is cropt ere night;
Man like a shadow flees.
Mercy, the only hope of man!
The rainbow of his fears!
That smiles away since floods began,
The deluge of his tears.
The love of praise, howe'er conceal'd by art,
Reigns more or less, and glows in ev'ry heart;
The proud to gain it, toils on toils endure,
The modest shun it, but to make it sure.
Successful pride is like the rainbow's glare,
Spans the whole world, then vanishes in air,—
But leaves the clouds of gloom and ruin spread
To brood and burst upon the victim's head.
'Tis liberty alone that gives the flower
Of fleeting life its lustre and perfume,
And we are weeds without it.

I, like you wither'd leaf remain behind,
Nipp'd by the frost and shiv'ring in the wind!
Here it abides till younger buds come on,
As I now, all my fellow swains are gone!
Then from the rising generation thrust,
It falls like me unnotic'd to the dust,

AGE.

O reputation, dearer than life!
Thou precious balsam, lovely, sweet of smell,
Whose cordial drops once spilt by some rash hands;
Not all the owner's care, nor the repenting toil
Of the rude spiller ever can collect
To its first purity, and native sweetness.

Reputation.

January...Prepare hot beds for cucumbers. As little can be done this month in a garden, I would advise the preparing of manure, and carrying it to your beds, that it may be ready to be spread on in Feb.

Planting out cabbages, beets, parsnips, carrots, salsify, turnips and celery, to produce seed...As soon as the weather is tolerably mild in March, plant out the above vegetables for seed, which were preserved during the winter. Select some of the best of each description; plant

*New style of bed covering....*Few persons, we apprehend, are aware that thick sheets of paper pasted at the edge to form one, if laid over a bed with one blanket under, will produce more warmth than three ordinary blankets, or over a single coverlet, will be warmer than one blanket only, and will last, with a little care, a whole winter.

*Wants....*Wanted immediately, a few persons of fair character, at a salary of $500 per annum, merely to mind their own business; with a periodical increase of $100 per annum, to leave other people's alone. Applications, with testimonials, to be addressed to virtue's residence.

THE LAST TEAR I SHED.

The last tear I shed was the warm one that fell,
As I kissed thee, dear mother, and bade thee farewell;
When I saw the deep anguish impressed on thy face,
And felt, for the last time, a mother's embrace;
And heard thy choked accents, impassioned and wild,
"God bless thee, for ever! God bless thee my child!"

I thought of my boyhood—thy kindness to me,
When youngest and dearest, I sat on thy knee;
Of thy love to me ever so fondly expressed,
As I grew to manhood, unconscious how blest;
Of thy praises when right, and thy chidings when wrong,
While wayward with passions unyielding and strong.

I thought of thy counsels, unheeded or spurned,
As mirth had enlivened or anger had burned;
And how, when by sickness all helpless I lay,
Thou didst nurse me and sooth me by night and by day;
How much I had been both thy sorrow and joy,
And my feeling o'erflowed, and I wept like a boy.

Years, years of endurance have vanished, and now
There is pain in my heart, there is care on my brow;
The visions of hope and of fancy are gone,
And cheerless I travel life's pathway alone;
Alone! aye, alone,—though some kind ones there be,
There are none here to love me—to love me like thee.

My mother, dear mother, cold-hearted they deem Thy offspring, but O, I am not what I seem;
Though calmly and tearless all changes I bear,
Could they look in my bosom, the feeling is there!
And now, sad and lonely, as memory recalls
Thy blessing at parting, again the tear falls.

A good example.... A boy was once tempted by some of his companions to pluck some ripe cherries from a tree which his father had forbidden him to touch. "You need not be afraid," said they; "for if your father should find out that you had taken them, he is so kind that he will not hurt you." "That is the very reason," replied the boy, "why I would not touch them. It is true, my father may not hurt me; yet my disobedience, I know, would hurt my father; and that would be worse to me than any thing else." Was not this an excellent reason?

General Rules.... General rules do not apply in all cases. We once knew a man who was so careful not to give offence, that in speaking of general faults, he would qualify his remarks by saying, "present company excepted." He chanced to be in company with some ladies, and spoke of an absent one as the ugliest person he ever saw, present company excepted. Now this mistake was, perhaps, worse than that made by the boy who, was told by his mother he must always except their minister. A few days after, he rushed into the presence of his mother, and exclaimed, "Mother, I have seen the greatest hog down town that I ever saw, except our minister."

Conversation.... Conversation is the daughter of reasoning, the mother of knowledge, the breath of the soul, the commerce of hearts, the bond of friendship, the nourishment of content, and the occupation of men of wit.—But flattery is like false money; and if it were not for our own vanity, could never pass in payment.

COURTSHIP AND MATRIMONY.

COURTSHIP.

Fairest of earth! if thou wilt hear my vow,
Lo! at thy feet, I swear to love thee ever;
And, by this kiss upon thy radiant brow,
Promise affection which no time shall sever;
And love which e'er shall burn as bright as now,
To be extinguished—never, dearest—never!
Wilt thou that naughty, fluttering heart resign?
Catherine! my own sweet Kate! wilt thou be mine?
Thou shalt have pearls to deck thy raven hair—
Thou shalt have all this world of ours can bring;
And we will live in solitude, nor care
For aught, save for each other. We will fling
Away all sorrow—Eden shall be there!
And thou shalt be my queen, and I thy king!
Still coy, and still reluctant? Sweetheart, say,
When shall we monarchs be? and which the day?

MATRIMONY.

Now, Mrs. Pringle, once for all I say
I will not such extravagance allow!
Bills upon bills, and larger every day,
Enough to drive a man to drink, I vow!
Bonnets, gloves, frippery and trash—nay, nay,
Tears, Mrs. Pringle, will not gull me now,
I say I won't allow ten pounds a week;
I can't afford it; Madam, do not speak!
In wedding you, I thought I had a treasure;
I find myself most miserably mistaken!
You rise at ten, then spend the day in pleasure;
In fact, my confidence is slightly shaken.
Ha! what's that uproar? This, ma'am, is my leisure;
Sufficient noise the slumbering dead to weaken!
I seek retirement, and I find—a riot;
Confound those children, but I'll make them quiet!

The way of the world.... There goes a virtuous and honest man. Who cares? Nobody looks at him, or cares a fig how he dresses or what he says.

Here passes a man of wealth. The old ladies and all the children run to the window. "Where?" "Who?" "How does he dress?" He is a great object of attraction. "How in the world did he make so much? He doesn't look as if he was worth a penny."

This is the way of the world. Every body gazes with admiration upon the rich, while they turn away from virtuous poverty.

Let a man make ten thousand dollars, and he is a gentleman, every inch of him. Every body has a kind word and a smile for him.

Be poor and honest, and no one knows you. Men and women have heard of such a name as yours, and you may live at their elbows, but they are not certain about it.

Ingratitude.... Ingratitude is a crime so shameful, that there never was yet one found that would acknowledge himself guilty of it.

The Phrase "Under the Rose.".... This saying took its rise from ancient convivial entertainments, at which it was the custom to wear chaplets of roses around the heads of the guests.—When any one was desirous that his words should be confined to the breasts of those present, he prefaced his observations or communications by the words, "Remember, we are under the rose," Old German houses have a rose sculptured on the ceiling of banqueting rooms.

LOVE, HOPE, AND MEMORY.

One summer's eve, as I reclined
Within a fairy bower;
Striving in vain to while away
A weary tedious hour;
There came three merry, laughing friends,
A happy company:
Three cheerful, loving friends they were,
Love, Hope, and Memory.
A year past by—I sought the bower
Where I before had lain;
I hoped that those same happy friends
Might visit me again;
Love and Memory appeared,
But they seemed sick and sad,
And when I asked for cheerful Hope
They told me he had fled.
Another year had passed away,
Again, I sought that spot;
Memory was there—I waited long;
But Love and Hope came not.
I asked of Memory where they were?
He sadly shook his head.
He said—bright Hope had ne'er returned,
And that young Love was dead.
A dozen Summers passed away,
Still Memory was there,
And though I never saw him smile,
He still seemed fresh and fair;
I asked him why he was unchanged—
A tear stood in his eye;
He said though Memory might be sad,
Yet it could never die.
The warmest Love may die away,
And brightest Hope take wings;
Memory, still the truest friend,
To dark misfortune clings.
And though perhaps it may recall,
Scenes that were best forgot;
It on the barren, withered heart,
Shows many a bright green spot.

To a Mother smiling on her sleeping Infant.
Enthusiast fond, whom hope beguiles,
What visions dost thou see?
Thou gazest on the babe with smiles,
Thinking what he will be.
Gaze on and smile—in after years
When time has changed the scene,
Thou'lt gaze upon the man with tears,
Thinking what he has been.

*Kissing....*The following are said to be very useful receipts. If your wife scolds, kiss her and keep her quiet. If your child cries, kiss it and keep it quiet. If your creditors appear in scores, with each a bill, why just kiss them and keep them quiet. The remedy will prove alike efficacious in these cases.

*Say yes, Pussy....*A bashful wooer, not long since, wishing to pop the question, did it in the following singular manner:—Taking up the young lady's cat, he said, "pussy, may I have your mistress?"—It was answered by the lady, who said, "say yes, pussy."

*Pouts....*A gentleman for the sake of a good joke did not spare the feelings even of his own family.—His wife and daughters, although very worthy people, were not remarkable for the pleasantness of their countenances. It is related of him, that he once invited a friend to dine with him on pouts, a fish of which the gentleman was remarkably fond. When dinner appeared, the guest remarked that the pouts were wanting. "Oh no," said the gentleman, "only look at my wife and daughters." A false Friend is like a shadow on a dial, it appears in clear weather, but vanishes as soon as it is cloudy.

SONG....THE GRAVE OF WASHINGTON.

Disturb not his slumbers let Washington sleep,
'Neath the boughs of the willow that over him weep;
His arm is unneru'd, but his deeds remain bright,
As the stars in the dark vaulted heaven at night.
Oh! wake not the hero, his battles are o'er,
Let him rest undisturb'd on Potomac's fair shore;
On the rivers green border so flowery drest,
With the hearts he lov'd fondly, let Washington rest
With the hearts he lov'd fondly, let Washington rest.
Awake not his slumbers tread lightly around,
'Tis the grave of a freeman 'tis Liberty's mound.
Thy name is immortal our freedom ye won,
Brave sire of Columbia our own Washington.
Oh! wake not the hero, his battles are o'er,
Let him rest, calmly rest, on his native shore;
While the stars and the stripes of our Country shall wave,
O'er the land that can boast of a Washington's grave.
O'er the land that can boast of a Washington's grave.

SONG....I'M WITH YOU ONCE AGAIN, MY FRIENDS.

I'm with you once again, my friends,
No more my footsteps roam;
Where it began, my journey ends
Amid the scenes of home.
No other clime has skies so blue,
Or streams so broad and clear,
And where are hearts so warm and true
As those that meet me here?
And where are hearts so warm and true
As those that meet me here?
Since last, with spirits wild and free,
I press'd my native strand,
I've wandered many miles at sea,
And many miles on land.
I've seen all nations of the earth,
Of every hue and tongue,
Which taught me how to prize the worth
Of that from which I sprung.
Which taught me how to prize the worth
Of that from which I sprung.
My native land, I turn to you,
With blessing and with prayer,
Where man is brave and woman true,
And free as mountain air.
Long may our flag in triumph wave,
Against the world combined,
And friends a welcome—foes a grave,
Within our borders find.
And friends a welcome—foes a grave,
Within our borders find.

Those who outlive their income by splendor in dress and equipage, resemble a town on fire, which shines by that which destroys it.
Plant tansey around the roots of peach trees.
The peach worm will not trouble them after.

Correct view....Mankind might do without physicians if they would observe the laws of health; without lawyers, if they would keep their tempers; without soldiers, if they would observe the laws of Christianity; and perhaps without preachers, if each one would take care of his own conscience; but there is no dispensing with the Almanack maker.

To my Sister, lately Married.

Let not my sister, though a wife,
Bid all her fears adieu,
Comforts there are in married life,
But there are crosses too.
I do not wish to mar your mirth,
With an ungrateful sound;
But yet remember, bliss on earth,
No mortal ever found.
Your prospects and your hopes are great;
May God, your hopes fulfil;
But you will find in every state
Some difficulties still.
The rites which lately joined your hands,
Cannot ensure content;
Religion forms the strongest bands,
And Love the best cement.
A friendship founded on esteem,
Life's battering blast endures;
It will not vanish as a dream,
And which, I hope, is yours.
But yet God's blessing daily crave,
Nor trust your youthful heart;
You must Divine assistance have
To act a prudent part.
Tho' you have left a parent's wing,
Nor longer ask its care:
It is but seldom husbands bring
A lighter yoke to wear.
They have their humors and their faults,
So mutable is man:
Excuse his failings in your thoughts,
And hide them if you can.
No anger nor resentment keep,
Whatever is amiss.
Be reconciled before you sleep,
And seal it with a kiss.
Should he see cause to reprehend,
Bear it with mild address;
Remember he's thy dearest friend,
And love him ne'er the less.
It's not the way to scold at large,
To clamor, rage, and boast:
For wives their duty best discharge,
Who condescend the most.
Mutual attempts to serve and please,
Each other will endear;
Thus may you spend your life with ease,
Nor discord interfere.
Thus give your tender passions scope,
Yet better things pursue,
Be Heaven the object of your hope,

Good Advice....Girls, beware of transient young men—never suffer the addresses of a stranger—recollect one good steady farmer's boy, or industrious mechanic, is worth more than all the floating trash in the world; the allurements of a dandy jack, with gold chain about his neck, some honest tailor's coat on his back, and a brainless though fancy skull, can never make up the loss of a kind father's home—a good mother's counsel, and the society of brothers and sisters. Their affection lasts—while that of such a young man is lost at the wane of a honey-moon.

A Fact....Young ladies who are accustomed to read this Almanack are always observed to possess winning ways, most amiable dispositions, always select good husbands, and invariably make good wives.

And lead him thither too.
Since you must both resign your breath,
And only God knows when:
So live that you may part at death
To meet with joy again.
And may the Lord your ways approve,
And grant you both a share
Of His redeeming, saving love,
And providential care.

Substantial....A man who gives his children the habit of industry, provides better for them than by giving them a large sum of money.

DON'T BE DISCOURAGED.

Don't be discouraged, if in the outset of life things do not go on smoothly. It seldom happens the hopes we cherish of the future are realized. The path of life, in the prospect, appears smooth and level enough, but when we come to travel it, we find it all up hills, and generally rough enough. The journey is a laborious one, and whether poor or wealthy, high or low, we shall find it so, to our disappointment, if we have built on any other calculation. To endure what is to be endured with as much cheerfulness as possible, and to elbow our way as easily as we can through the great crowd, hoping for little, yet striving for much, is perhaps the true plan. But Don't be discouraged, if occasionally you slip down by the way, and your neighbors tread over you a little; accidents happen, miscalculations will sometimes be made, things will turn out differently from our expectations, and we may be sufferers. It is worth while to remember that prospects are, like the skies in April, sometimes clouded, and sometimes clear and favorable; and as it would be folly to despair of again seeing the sun because to-day, is stormy, so it is unwise to sink into despondency when fortune frowns, since in the common course of things she may be surely expected to smile again.

Don't be discouraged, under any circumstances. Go steadily forward. Rather consult your own conscience than the opinions of men, though the last are not to be disregarded. Be industrious, be frugal, be honest: deal in perfect kindness with all who come in your way, exercising a neighborly and obliging spirit in your whole intercourse; and if you do not prosper as rapidly as any of your neighbors, depend upon it you will be happy.

Apologue....When the Almighty was about to create man, he summoned around his sacred throne, to council, his attendant angels, the highest guards of his kingdom.

"Create him not," said the Angel of Justice; "he will be unkind towards his brother, severe and cruel to the weak."

"Create him not," said the Angel of Peace; "he will manure the earth with the blood of men; the first born of the race will slay his brother."

"Thine holiness he will profane with lies," pursued the Angel of Truth, "although thou shouldst imprint on his countenance thine image, the likeness of Truth itself."

So spake all the attendant angels of Jehovah, when Mercy, the Eternal Father's youngest and dearest child, approaches his throne and bowed before it. "Father," said she, "make man after thine image; the cherished object of thy mercy and goodness; when all thine angels forsake him, I will seek him out and remain with him, and turn even his faults to good; even by his own weakness will I incline his heart to sympathize and bear with the infirmities of others. If he forsake the very way of Peace and Truth, if he sin against Justice and Equity, the consequences of his errors shall render him more meek and amiable."

The Father of the Universe hearkened to her, and made man a weak, erring creature; but withal, a pupil of Mercy, the son of that Divine love which never leaves him.

Remember thine origin, O man! when thou wouldst be cruel and unjust to others: Mercy hath chosen thee, and thou art the nursling of Compassion and Love.

ARITHMETICAL QUESTIONS.

1. What numbers are they that the first and third can be divided by two; the first and second can be divided by three; the first and third can be divided by four; the second and third can be divided by five; and if they are all added together they cannot be divided by any of those numbers.

2. A ship was in a perilous situation, with a hole in one of her planks of 12 inches square; and the only plank that could be had was 16 inches long, by 9 inches broad. Required to know how this said piece must be cut into four pieces so as to repair the hole perfectly.

RIDDLES.

1. Two gentlemen had equal interests in an 8 gallon keg of wine, but upon coming to divide it found they had nothing to measure by, but the keg which held the wine, a 5 gallon and a 3 gal. keg. How was it done?

2. I am regarded with pity and contempt, nay, sometimes with even hatred; every one looks upon me with dread and almost horror; yet no one can endure the idea of never possessing me.

CHARADES.

1. My first is a carriage, my next a disease;
My whole you will find in the garden;
The which, ere 'tis got, if my second should seize,
'Tis likely 'tis not worth a farthing.

2. My first a slice affords so nice,
My second discomposes;
My whole's a bed where honour's head
Devotedly reposes.

3. Nice to the palate is my first, all old folks have my second;
Of my whole young folks are mostly fond, and lovely am I reckon'd.

4. Before a circle let appear
Twice twenty-five, and five in rear;
One-fifth of eight subjoining, then,
Will quickly show what conquers men.

5. Prone from our grasp on outstretched wing to burst,
Even while I speak my second is my first.
Use well that second; nourish self-control,
And in pursuing wisdom find my whole.

ENIGMAS.

1. An article of daily use am I, and lend my aid
Most cheerfully alike to both mistress and her maid;
Behead, curtail, transpose with care,
Look on the hearth, perchance I'm there.

2. What is the largest and shortest thing in the world, the swiftest and the slowest, the most divisible and the most extended, the least valued and the most regretted,—without which nothing can be done; which devours all that is small, yet gives life to all that is great?

QUESTIONS.

1. Find the least number that may be divided by three and 2 left, by 5 and 1 left, by 11 and 7 be left.

2. Three men are employed to carry, horizontally, a stick of timber of uniform size, from end to end. At what distance from one end must two of the men apply a lever, so that the other man, taking hold at the other end, each man may carry an equal share of the weight?

REBUSES.

1. A hundred and fifty, if rightly applied
To a place where the living did all once reside,
Will name the sweet girl I dearly adore,
And if I can get her, I wish for no more.
2. Without me, your dinner unpleasant would be,
Although you may shun me while drinking your tea;
Neatly cut off my tale, and you make me a maid;
Screw it on, and transpose, perhaps I'm used in your trade.

PROBLEM.... A young lady being asked her age, said—"If from the square of my age you take 192, the remainder will be the square of half my age." What was her age? Ans. in our next.
